Plenty of choice with new Honda CR-V range

WILLIAM STOFFORD

The Honda CR-V range looks very different for 2020, with multiple new hybrid options and a petrol-powered line-up of mid-size SUVs announced today.

Until now, the only current-generation CR-V hybrid available was the front-wheel drive e:HEV RS variant. Now, there are four: two with front-wheel drive, and two with all-wheel drive.

The CR-V e:HEV (hybrid) line-up now opens at $49,900 drive-away for the e:HEV X. That's $5000 more than the base petrol-powered VTI X but $7000 less than the cheapest hybrid option in 2020.

It slots in under the new e:HEV LX at $53,900 drive-away, with the all-wheel drive e:HEV LX and e:HEV RS priced at $58,900 and $64,400 drive-away respectively.

However, the cost of entry into a seven-seat CR-V has risen by $7600 with the axing of the VTI X7. That leaves just the VTI L7 at $54,900 drive-away; it costs $1500 more than last year.

Also dead for 2020 are the petrol-powered VTI L five-seater in both front and all-wheel drive configurations, as well as the five-seat VTI LX AWD. That leaves just a pair of purely petrol-powered options: an entry-level option and a mid-spec one with seven seats.

You could never get a seven-seat CR-V with either hybrid power or all-wheel drive, and this hasn't changed for 2020. But, unusually, Honda didn't offer an all-wheel drive hybrid option previously despite this being available in Thailand.

Meantime, a 9.0-inch touchscreen infotainment system remains standard across the CR-V range for 2020, but it now features Google built-in with embedded Google apps.

A 10.5-inch digital instrument cluster is now more widely available, with only the base VTI X missing out, while a surround-view camera is now available in all hybrid variants bar the e:HEV X.

The e:HEV RS AWD flagship has been the biggest beneficiary of spec updates, gaining not only a surround-view camera but also a head-up display, heated steering wheel, ventilated front seats and heated rear seats.

It also moves to black wheel-arch cladding, and sweeps its body-colour door handles for black ones.

Unlike CR-Vs offered in markets such as Japan, however, front cross-traffic alert, lane-change assist, and active blind-spot assist aren't offered in Australia.

All local CR-Vs do, however, continue to come standard with rear cross-traffic alert and blind-spot monitoring, among other safety features.

Powertrains on offer are a turbocharged 1.5-litre four-cylinder petrol engine with 140kW of power and 240Nm of torque, mated with a continuously variable transmission (CVT), or a 2.0-litre four-cylinder hybrid system with total outputs of 158kW and 335Nm, matched as standard with an e-CVT. "Australians are choosing hybrids in record numbers and with our e:HEV, we know we have one of the best there in both power delivery and economy," said Honda Australia director of automotive, Robert Thorp. "Expanding e:HEV down the range means you can now get into a hybrid CR-V for around $7000 less than in 2019. Add in hybrid AWD and there really is an option for everybody."

Honda is also set to increase the number of hybrid variants available for its smaller XR-V SUV later this year.

Voges signs off 'proud'

JAKE SANTA MARIA

Adam Voges has signed off on his reign at the top of West Australian cricket with a dramatic Sheffield Shield draw against New South Wales as he reflected on the end of an era.

Chasing an unlikely 273 runs to win after the home side declared at 8-373 midway through the first session, WA were seemingly meandering towards a draw at 5-133 with less than 10 overs remaining before a late collapse saw them save the game by one wicket.

The draw sees WA end the season with just one win and a second straight wooden spoon, but Voges, shaking hands below with NSW bowler Charlie Stobo, says he will leave with his head held high, having orchestrated a dominant period for WA cricket.

“I guess there’s a range of emotions at the moment. I loved every minute I’ve been able to be part of WA cricket,” he said.

“To think not just eight years as a coach, but the 15 or 16 as a player coming to an end, I’ve been able to experience a lot and take a lot of memories with me.”

“I’m proud of what I’ve achieved, but also sad it’s come to an end as well.”

Voges orchestrated a hat-trick of shield and One Day Cup titles between 2021/22 and 2023/24 to go with one-day success in 2019/20, while he also led Perth Scorchers to three titles, where he will remain as coach after WA elected to split the coaching set-up.

NSW quick Liam Hatcher orchestrated a dramatic collapse of 4-8, removing Joel Curtis and Jhye Richardson in the space of five balls before Sean Abbott bowled Joel Paris to leave WA eight down with 4.4 overs remaining.

Cameron Gannon fell on the third ball of the final over, but Albert Esterhuysen managed to get off strike with a single, allowing Corey Rocchiccioli (1 off 25) to see out the remaining two balls.

Having taken a 101-run lead into the second innings after a drought-breaking century from Cam Green, WA could not strike regularly, with six of NSW's top seven posting scores of 30 or more, including three 50s.

Voges lamented WA's inability to press home their advantage but praised Green for his innings after what has been a tough six months.

“I thought we played really well in the first two days and got outplayed in the next two, and that’s the challenge for the group moving forward, is when we get ourselves in a dominant position, how do we keep that momentum?” Voges said.

“But I was really pleased for Corey, he’s had another outstanding shield season, and for Cam to come back into the team and score the runs that he did shows a lot.”
